After the Earthquake

Tokyo English Life Line

Supporting Humanitarian Disaster Relief

On March 11, a powerful, magnitude 9.0 quake hit northeastern Japan, triggering a tsunami with 10-meter-high waves that reached the U.S. west coast.

TELL focused on 5 key support areas;

- 1. The Life Line ran during and after the disaster
- 2. Website information and resources
- 3. Coping after a disaster resources, talks for schools, organizations and workplaces & onsite support
- 4. Linking professional societies, government and NGOs
- 5. Psychological First Aid training to NGOs
- 6. Compassion fatigue workshops to NGOs and individuals

1. The Life Line: 03-4775-0992

Calls to the Life Line were immediate – from abroad & across Japan.

Predominant issues:

- Acute anxiety following the earthquake and tsunami*
- Chronic anxiety over ongoing problems at crippled Fukushima nuclear plant.*
- Uncertainty about what to do/ how to respond*
- Lack of accurate information in English*

The Life Line continued to operate without interruption everyday from 9am – 11pm to ensure the community had somewhere to turn to. Faced with the threat of blackout and train stoppages, Skype and other tools were used to ensure support was always available.

2. Online Information and Links

The screenshot shows the TELL (Tokyo English Life Line) website. The header includes the TELL logo and navigation links: Get Help, Support TELL, Events Calendar, About TELL, and MAP. A breadcrumb trail reads Home » About » News. A left sidebar contains navigation buttons for History of TELL, Our People, Jobs, TELL News, and Contact Us. Below this is a circular logo for 'ONLINE ENGLISH DIRECTORY WIKI-tell' with the text 'FIND HELP IN ENGLISH'. The main content area features a prominent banner for 'JAPAN 2011 EARTHQUAKE NEWS - HELP - RESOURCES' with a sub-header 'UPDATED!!—JAPAN 2011 EARTHQUAKE HELP'. Below the banner is a section for 'Disaster Emergency Message Dial 171', accompanied by an image of a person on a phone and a damaged building. A list of links is provided: EMOTIONAL SUPPORT AFTER THE EARTHQUAKE, LIFELINES, DONATE/ HELP THE RELIEF EFFORT, INFORMATION AND RESOURCES, KANTO BLACKOUT SCHEDULE, and DISASTER MESSAGE BOARDS.

TELL focused on gathering accurate, reliable information – firstly, with emergency information, and secondly, with helping people cope. Hits to the TELL website rose dramatically.

3. Normalizing – Building Resilience

Чего ожидать после травмирующих событий

После землетрясений и цунами, которые только что произошли в Японии, нет ничего удивительного в том, что каждый человек, переживший эту трагедию, испытывает глубочайшее душевное и физическое потрясение. Разрушительное действие этих событий простирается далеко за пределы непосредственных видимых параметров этой катастрофы, нанося прежде всего глубокую психологическую травму. Прерванный режим работы у взрослых, школы у детей, повседневных дел и забот добавляет напряжение и стресс и без этого нелегким обстоятельствам. Поэтому прежде всего понимание, как события такого масштаба влияют на психику, поможет справиться с шоком, вернуть привычный контроль над событиями, а вместе с ним и нормальный образ жизни. Все мы, конечно, по-разному прореагировали на бедствие, обрушившееся на нас, и по-разному пытаемся справиться с его последствиями. Самая распространенная реакция – люди становятся сверхбдительными – напряженными и настороженными; кто-то наблюдая природную реакцию на себе, ост

What to Expect after a Traumatic Event

International Medical Corps

It is natural and normal for everyone to experience emotional reactions after the recent serious earthquakes and tsunamis in Japan. The effects go far beyond the immediate devastation and destruction, taking an emotional toll on everyone. Disruptions to work, living situations, school, and daily routines add additional strains and stressors on everyone. Helping people understand how traumatic events affect them, can help them to gain control over their lives again, something that was lost with the disaster.

Everyone has different needs and different ways of coping with a disaster. The most common reaction is hyper-vigilance - feeling over cautious and wary about things - others may withdraw, and not want to discuss events. But everyone who sees or experiences a disaster is affected by it, no one is untouched.

Common Reactions to traumatic events

- It is normal to feel anxious about safety for yourself, family members, relatives, and friends.
- Some people may experience headaches, muscles aches, and stomach aches.
- Some people may experience disruptions to their sleeping and eating patterns.
- Some people experience trouble concentrating, thinking clearly, and making decisions.
- Some people feel sad, anxious, overwhelmed, and angry.

TELL disseminated information on coping with disasters to adults, parents and teachers in 17 languages.

5. Psychological First Aid (PFA) Training

PFA is a non-clinical approach.
Basic strategies of PFA :

Helping affected individuals to feel connected to others, provide them with access to emotional, social, and physical support

Helping affected populations to help themselves (individually as a community)

Helping first responders with self care strategies.

Current global guidelines recommend that all relief and health workers interacting with those affected by disasters should be trained in Psychological First Aid
